Any person serving a newspaper in any capacity usually is made to realize the need of getting copy into the office on time. Occasional correspondents, however, and the public generally, do not see why their copy should not be printed in full, even though it is brought in at the last moment.

The lower branch of the Kentucky
Legislature passed two bills last Monday introduced by Representative William A. Perry, of Louisville, one providing a fine for untruthfulness in advertising and the other giving a person whose property is sold for taxes a year after becoming of age to redeem the property.

If our good and loyal friends could take one glance at our books they would be appalled at the amount of money that is due us on subscription to this paper. They are small accounts individually, ranging from 50 cents to $2 or $3, marked up against men and women who are as good as their bond.

But we can not pay our own bills with the honor and the integrity of our subscribers. We put up the cash.

When the moon passed between the sun and the earth today, a shadow 50 to 100 miles in diameter was cast which traveled over a space 9,000 miles in length. The shadow began far out in the Pacific ocean, traveling in a northeasterly direction. The shadow touched land about 200 miles south of Panama and crossed portions of Columbia and Venezuela. In this latitude about three-tenths of the sun was obscured. The eclipse was visible here thru smoked glasses about 9 o'clock.
About this time a small portion of the sun was touched by the moon. The eclipse ended at 11 o'clock.

Mark Twain once had a few words to say about prohibition: "I am a friend of temperance, and want it to succeed,
but I don't think prohibition is practical.
The Germans, you see, prevent it.
Look at them. They have just invented a method of making brandy out of sawdust. Now what chance will prohibition have when a man can take a rip saw and go out and get drunk with a fence rail? What is the good of prohibition if a man is able to make brandy mashes out of shingles of his roof, or if he can get the delirium tremens by drinking the legs off the kitchen table?"

LET THERE BE LIGHT.

Whom shall we ask, the Mayor, the City Council, the Commercial Club,
the Woman's Club or the Boy Scouts,
why we have had no lights in the City Park for the past two weeks? Perhaps we should tell our troubles to the police or take them to the City Attorney, but at any rate we would just like to know the reason why the lights are not burning.

ECHO SAY'S WHY!

Profiting by Stanford's example, the Lancaster Record wants to know why the city deposit there is not let out to the highest bidder. No satisfactory reason can be given for not doing so.
It is the taxpayer's money and they are entitled to any benefits derived from its use. Public funds of every nature, should be handled in the same way. --Interior Journal.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Rev. F. M. Tindler will not preach at the Danville Christian church next Sunday, as had been announced, owing to the fact that this church will be occupied by the Volunteer Student Body on tian church here as usual and will conduct the union services at the Methodist church Sunday night, his theme being "Our Young People's Era and Opportunity".

A GOOD BILL.

A move to impress upon teachers the importance of their being familiar with the general laws of health, and watchful for evidence of bad health and poor eyesight among their pupils, is embodied in a bill introduced in the House Friday. It is brief and provides that the State University and white and colored normal schools shall arrange for practical instruction on the causes and prevention of sickness and of blindness and impairment of vision. The State Board of Health is charged with the responsibility in the bill of providing a teacher for this instruction, without charge to the institution, and it is understood that the State Board of Health is very willing to undertake this educational work. The bill will not carry an appropriation.

FIRST GOVERNOR TO DO IT

Kentucky is one hundred and twenty-three years old, and has had forty different Governors, Owsley Stanley, whose enemies said he was a drunkard,
a whiskeyette, and was elected by the whiskey ring, was the first of the State's Governors who ever said there should be no liquor furnished at any dinner at the Mansion and that he would touch no intoxicants during his term of office. He was elected despite what was said of him, and those who said the mean things are still "agin"
him. --Shelby Record.

Concerning Governor Stanley it can be truly said that opportunity has been given and caution has been wisdom. He is making a great and admirable Chief Executive--despite the snarls of the benches and the snapping of the curs. --Georgetown Times.

YOU ALL KNOW HIM.

A local citizen played it on his wife
the other day. Went home to lunch.
Very silent. Thoughts apparently far away. Moaned around for an hour.
Told his wife he had seen the sweetest
and most beautiful woman on earth.
Discovered an immediate and intense frigidity in the atmosphere. Home surcharged with electricity. Wife dignified and silent. Uncommunicative.
Children dismayed and in awe. Dog and cat sink away. Storm brewing.
About to break. Man remarks the "beautiful one, is married. Husband a lucky dog. He is the husband. Frigidity disappears. Electricity vanishes.
Clouds melt away. Sunshine again.
Warmth everywhere. Peaches and cream. Kovey, dovey. Children happy. Dog and cat back. Pie for a week.
Amen.

LANCASTER ROBBER CAUGHT

The identification of "J. W. Grant"
as J. W. Rice, a resident of Lexington, was accomplished by the detectives of Lexington late Friday afternoon.
After a long cross examination,
"Grant" confessed, according to Chief Brown, that he was J. W. Rice, and that he lived with his wife in Forest Hill at 820 Whitney avenue. He said he came there from Chattanooga two years ago.

The detectives say they believe that they have established his connection with the robbery of the safe in the Louisville & Nashville railroad station and the burglary of McRoberts' drug store here at Lancaster last Wednesday night, and the dynamiting of the safe in the L. L. Roberts' Furniture Company of Lexington, last summer.

The ticket agent, Mr. Kirk, at Lancaster, and the conductor on a Louisville & Nashville train were at police station Friday afternoon and accompanied the detectives to the county jail of Lexington where Rice is confined. Mr.
Kirk, agent, stated to Chief Brown that Rice was the man who bought a ticket for Lexington from him Thursday. The conductor stated that Rice came to Lexington on his train that morning from Lancaster. A sample of soap used in cracking the depot safe was declared to be identical with the large lump in the kit.

The syringe and "dope" pellets found in the kit in possession of Rice when arrested were identified by the detectives as stolen from McRoberts' drug store in Lancaster. Chief Brown stated that Rice has never denied complicity in the robberies mentioned, but when pressed with the accusation stated,
"Well, chief, you caught me with the goods on in this Refining Company affair, so why worry about any others?"
Mrs. Rice visited her husband Saturday morning in jail. He said to a Leader reporter Saturday that he felt very badly. Physicians have visited him since his confinement.

BIG CROWD IN

TOWN MONDAY.

Although the weather was what might be called "unpropitious", to say the least of it, last Monday, the crowd was one of the largest ever seen in town. Every one was in a good humor and made the best of a steady down pour as well as mud and slush. Livery stables did a land office business, as every stall was full to over flowing, while buggies and automobiles lined the square and streets. Truly, Lancaster looked like a metropolis and took care of her visitors in a way that did her proud. Come to see us again and the officer you come the better you will like us. Among the many happy hearts that left town Ollie Royse's was the happiest while James Dalton's was a close second.

THE LAW WITH

THE BARK ON IT.

Many of our subscribers ask us each day why we do not publish a list of the prizes that have been drawn at the two contests recently held in our town.
Such matter has been declared unavailable by the authorities at Washington and Postmaster Brown has had his instructions in very plain language from these powers that be.

Section 574 of the Postal Laws of 1913 says:

"Newspapers and other publications in transit which contain lottery advertisements or lists of prizes drawn at a lottery, shall be held and a report made to the Assistant Attorney General for the Post Office Department for instructions".

Now this is the law with the bark on it and is the reason why we have never published in detail a list of the drawings.

PROUD OF OUR

COURT HOUSE.

The work of remodeling the Court House having been completed in the most satisfactory manner, those who will occupy offices in it are moving in and will soon be easily encoined in their new and beautiful quarters. The first door on the right is that of Sheriff Tom Ballard's, the second door on the right is the office of Circuit Clerk, Joe
A. Burnside, then comes County Clerk
Will Hamilton's office. On the left,
first door, is that of County Attorney, G. C. Walker, on the same side, the County Judge and Fiscal Court rooms.

Our court house had long needed remodeling and repairing and now that it is completed it is a thing of beauty and will be the joy and the pride of our county for years to come. It is more commodious, is steam heated, well lighted and ventilated, and the offices together with the whole building are in keeping with the time and place in which we live.

RICHMOND MARKET.

Still Breaking Record Prices.

We are sorry to announce that the "copy" for the advertisement of The Madison Tobacco Warehouse came in too late for publication this week. It tells of more fabulous prices that have been made there this week and that their floors are crowded to the doors.
The floor average for this house last Friday was $15.38. The entire crop of J. J. Sebastian, of Garrard county averaged $34.10 a hundred and he had 1880 pounds. One basket containing 255 pounds brought $54 a hundred or a total of $137.70 Tussey Bros., crop of 2430 pounds averaged $33.08.
J. W. Smith crop of 1075 pounds averaged $32. Hickman Bros., 5715
pounds averaged $22.00. B. F. Lunsford 1865 pounds averaged $21.70.
Prather and Creech, averaged $18.70.
Luther Gibbs crop averaged, $21.06 and J. D. Long's the handsome average of $27.00.

SUPERVISOR BOGIE RESIGNS.

Accepts Position With Culvert Company.

Mr. John Bogie who has been the Road Supervisor for Garrard county for the past two years resigned this office last week and has accepted a position with the Newport Culvert Company, of Newport, Ky., and assumed his duties last Monday morning. This is a very lucrative job, paying $1,800 a year and his expenses. Mr. Bogie is admirably fitted for the position and his friends are proud of his promotion. His family will remain in this city, as Mr. Bogie will be on the road all of his time, but hopes to run in home every week.

The resignation of Mr. Bogie will cause the appointment of his successor and there is much speculation as to who the lucky man will be. The position of Road Supervisor is one of the most important in the county, requiring thought and experience, beside which a rigid examination must be passed to obtain it.
County Judge C. A. Arnold makes the appointment, which must be ratified by the Fiscal Court. There are many applicants for the place and we trust a good man will be chosen.

NOTICE.

I am compelled to have money to pay my bills and

OVERCOME BY GAS.

Mrs. Steve K. Vaught, of Winchester, was overcome by gas fumes and found unconscious in the bath room of her apartments last Monday, and for a time it was thought she was in a serious condition. She remained unconscious for several hours. Mrs. Vaught entered the bath room about noon and had the gas turned very high and it is supposed that she was overcome very suddenly. Friends called several times over the telephone and getting no answer went to investigate, and their timely arrival probably saved her from death.

A WISE MEASURE.

A bill has been introduced in the Kentucky Legislature to reduce the number of pre-emptory challenges in felony cases. This measure has had the endorsement of the County Attorneys' Association and also of the Commonwealth's Attorneys. It is a measure which The News has always favored. The large number of challenges now granted the accused without cause are not used to secure a fair and impartial trial, as the best men summoned for jury service are the ones excused, in bad cases. They are used generally to get the worst jury possible in hopes that by this means, if an acquittal is impossible, that one or two men can be found to hang the jury. If the number of challenges are reduced the number of guilty men who escape will be reduced, but no person on trial for a crime will have any of his just rights taken from him, nor will the probability of his conviction, if he is innocent, be endangered. The change in the law has always been defeated in the Legislature by a number of criminal lawyers in the Legislature who made their money by defending criminals and whose success is marked by a number of guilty men they are able to acquit.

EX-GARRARDITE

Celebrates Seventy-Six Anniversary.

A few of the older citizens of this city will remember with pleasure Mr.
James W. Ramsey, formerly of this county, but now long a resident of Washington, Ind. He was an intimate friend of Mr. J. W. Pumphrey and was his "best man" at the latter's wedding nearly fifty years ago. Mr. Ramsey now ranks as one of the leading citizens of Washington and the following from the Washington, Ind. Herald, attest his popularity:

"The beautiful home of James W.
Ramsey, city councilman and revered civil war veteran, was the scene of an enjoyable gathering Saturday night when his charming wife, to celebrate her husband's seventy-sixth birthday anniversary, entertained the city council, Mayor McCarty, and a few invited friends.

An impromptu program of toasts followed the serving of an elaborate supper, Mayor McCarty, in his usual pleasing manner, presiding as master of ceremonies. The responses, brief but to the point, were profuse in congratulations to the honor guest, whose residence in Washington since 1872 has made him one of the city's most honored and prominent citizens. As a climax for the evening, Mayor McCarty presented Mr. Ramsey with a gold-headed umbrella, the gift of his colleagues in council. Mr. Ramsey's response, delivered with an emotion that indicated a deep feeling, was most appropriate."

IT'S THREE YEARS OLD

But Mrs. Walter Says It's Just as Good Today as When It Was First Made.

Three years ago Mrs. Walter testified to complete relief from kidney ills. Later she says that there has not been the slightest return of the trouble. Lancaster sufferers will take a deal of comfort in Mrs. Walter's statement. Read what she says:

Mrs. E. F. Walter, Hill St., Lancaster, says: "Whenever my back becomes lame and painful, a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at R. E. McRoberts & Son Drug Store, bring me instant relief. At one time I feared that I had serious kidney trouble. The kidney secretions were unnatural and gave unmistakable evidence of disordered kidneys. Doan's Kidney Pills in a short time made my kidneys normal."

HASN'T SUFFERED SINCE. OVER THREE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Walter said: "My kidneys have been in excellent condition since giving my former endorsement of Doan's Kidney Pills."

DYER, TENN., MAN SUFFERED 40 YEARS

J. T. Castleman Finds Hope Fulfilled After Passing Threescore Years.

J. T. Castleman of Dyer, Tenn., suffered from stomach derangements for forty years, taking all sorts of medicine, following all kinds of medical advice.

In all the forty years, he said, he never had a real good day—until he tried Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. Then he discovered something. Let his letter tell about it:

"The first dose of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy caused gall stones to pass from me. I am feeling much better than I have ever before. I am 64 years old and I had never before enjoyed one whole good day.

"I would not give the one bottle you sent me for all the drugs and doctors' medicine that is made."

Colds

should be "nipped in the bud", for if allowed to run unchecked, serious results may follow. Numerous cases of consumption, pneumonia, and other fatal diseases, can be traced back to a cold. At the first sign of a cold, protect yourself by thoroughly cleansing your system with a few doses of the old reliable, vegetable liver powder. Mr. Chas. A. Ragland, of Madison Heights, Va., says: "I have been using Theodor's Black-Draught for stomach troubles, indigestion, and colds, and find it to be the very best medicine I ever used. It makes an old man feel like a young one." Insist on Theodor's, the original and genuine. E-67

THEODOR'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

SCHOOL NOTES.

The number in Miss Elmore's room has also grown till the seating capacity is taxed to its limit.

The Music class is still growing, the latest additions being Mina Rankin, Lillian Estes and Ida Burnside.

The enrollment in Miss Smith's room since Christmas is 61; all available space is utilized for desks and still there is not sufficient room.

We are pleased to note that Mrs. Todd is meeting her classes again after an enforced absence of several days because of sickness in her home.

The school keenly felt the absence of one of the preachers Tuesday morning in their weekly visits to the school. Their presence and helpful words are always enjoyed.

Those of our school who recently took the examination for the Common School Diploma are Josephine Burnside, Kathleen Bratton, William Walker, Gordon Doty and Nell Rigby.

Two Music Clubs have been organized in the music class for the study and pleasure that may be derived therefrom. These Clubs meet, one on Tuesday, the other on Wednesday afternoon.

It has been estimated that fully 50 children have entered our school during this school year whose parents have moved to Lancaster recently; we are glad to have them; let them come on in increasing numbers.

The teachers of the school held their bi-weekly meeting in the home of Miss Tindler on last Friday night. This year the teachers are studying Colvin's excellent work, "The Learning Process", with both pleasure and profit.

On Friday morning the following named girls from the music department played at the chapel hour: Anna Britton Moss, Virginia Pearl Walker and Mary Davis. These girls were heard with delight and rapt attention.

Let us again ask that you as parents will assist the school in its effort to encourage more home study. It is due the child that he be provided with adequate light and favorable surroundings for effective study. May we not confidently hope that you lend us this much needed sympathetic help.

May the school be permitted to urge with all seriousness upon the patrons the very great importance of having your children in school every day and getting them there on time. Your co-operation at this point will not only help your own child, but will greatly strengthen the discipline of the school and thereby increase its efficiency.

The Best Recommendation.

The strongest recommendation any article may receive is a favorable word from the user. It is the recommendations of those who have used it that makes Chamberlain's Cough Remedy so popular. We are authorized to announce Miss Jennie Higgins a candidate for County School Superintendent of Garrard County, subject to the action of the Democratic primary August 1917.

Upon the resignation of County Engineer, J. O. Bogie, it is up to the County Judge to find a successor, who is able to meet the requirements of this important place. The large duties entrusted upon the engineer is suggested in the fact that he has the expenditure largely upon his recommendation of about twenty-five thousand, ($25,000) of the people's money and the further duty of keeping in a condition for travel about three hundred and twenty-five miles of public roads.

Notwithstanding that the amount of money available for road purposes in this County have been growing larger each year our roads are no better as a whole, many think not as good, as when the pikes were freed. While it is true we have had some unusual heavy rains that have injured and washed the pikes and roads, and there has been a great increase in heavy hauling in addition to the rapid wear of road incidental to the increased use by motor vehicles, it is our opinion that if we had enjoyed in this County for the past ten years a good business system in handling the turnpikes and dirt roads they would have been much better. No man is competent to fill this position who has not industry, business experience, as well as a knowledge of road building. In fact, there is no office in the county so important to the general public as the position of Road Engineer. It is far too important to be handed around just to reward political favorites. The people are expecting Judge Arnold and the Fiscal Court to provide us with better roads than we have had in the past, because there is a larger fund available since we get the State Aid and if the public is disappointed in this it will be due to the mistake in selecting an engineer who is competent to inaugurate a system necessary to successfully handle this large and important business proposition. The demand is so general for better roads that the people will not suffer a neglect in this branch of the public business and if a failure is made in meeting the public demand there will be some disappointment in the future incidental to the continuation of the present conditions.

The public addresses of President Wilson advocating a more efficient army and navy is firing the patriotism of the nation. This country should have an ample navy to protect its coasts and an increase in the army sufficient to meet the needs in the event we were forced into war. The nation is with the President on this proposition and we have no doubt that Congress will soon carry out the recommendations of the President for a more efficient army and navy.

There will be no further effort to create the new County of Stanley, it being announced that legislation along this line is dropped. The move was unpopular. The late experience with the new County of McCreary was too fresh in the minds of the people. We think it is best for the democratic party and the present administration that the effort was not successful. We have enough counties already.

GROUND HOG MAKES OFFICIAL VISIT.

Yesterday Mr. G. Hog, following his time-hallowed custom, emerged from his hibernation, rubbed his drowsy eyes and took a peek at the outside world, and an official forecast of the weather conditions. He failed to find Old Sol and the consequent shadow and as tradition has it, spring is here. So mote it be.

CATARRHAL FEVER

Deadly Disease On Atlanta Mule Market.

A letter from Mr. James Phillips, a prominent mule dealer of Columbus, Ga., to Mr. W. B. Burton of this city, states that Catarrhal Fever has broken out among the mules on the Atlanta market and advises him not to ship any more there for the present. Mr. Phillips has recently lost four mules purchased on this market and has quite a number sick from the dangerous disease. He intimates that the Government may establish a quarantine to eradicate the malady. This same disease was in this county a few years ago and thousands of dollars worth of valuable stock was lost before it was entirely eradicated.

WANT TEMPERANCE DAY ANNUAL AFFAIR.

The W. C. T. U. is behind a bill, which will be introduced in the Legislature in the next few days providing for a special Temperance Day, similar to Arbor Day, in the public schools of the State. Kansas and Alabama have provided for the observance of such a day in their public schools, and the W. C. T. U. organization which is backing the proposed measure believes that it will be a good educational feature for Kentucky public schools. The bill specifies the fourth Friday in October for this special day and its authors think it has a splendid chance to pass.

CELEBRATED SEVENTIETH BIRTHDAY.

Mr. R. K. Conn of this city was greatly surprised Saturday morning the 29th when his children, grandchildren and friends began to gather until 38 had assembled at his home. They soon gently reminded him that it was the approach of another milestone by many handsome presents. Each guest was laden with baskets which were filled with good things from which a bounteous feast was served later in the day.

"Uncle Bob" is a respectable citizen of Garrard county where he was born and reared. He is the father of eleven children all of whom are alive. The grand-father of forty-six and the great-grand-father of three. He and his beloved companion were well and hearty on the joyous day, and we hope he may spend many such birthdays.

RECOVERS FROM SERIOUS OPERATION.

Abbott, New Mexico, Jan. 27th, 1916. To The Central Record:—
Dr. Bartholemew took Prof. H. Caldwell to the Physicians Hospital in Tucumcari where he successfully underwent an operation for appendicitis last Sunday evening. Dr. Catterson, assisted by Drs. Herring and Bartholemew performed the operation.

We are sure that Mr. Caldwell's friends back in Garrard county Kentucky will be glad to learn that he is improving nicely. It will be remembered that two years ago he was married to Miss Grace Gay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Gay of Hyattsville, Kentucky and they went to New Mexico last spring to homestead a farm and make it their future home.

Since Professor and Mrs. Caldwell have been with us they have made many warm friends and we would be glad if Kentucky would send us more such citizens.

During the past school year Prof. Caldwell has distinguished himself at the head of our school and his work has been thoroughly satisfactory to all.

Citizens of Abbott New Mexico.
Mrs. Clara McKee, Secretary.

THE SERENE ATTITUDE.

A Chicago club woman holds out new hope to the young man and woman who are hesitating on the brink of matrimony because of a limited income. She advises the young woman under these circumstances to "adopt a serene attitude toward clothes."

It was a discussion of the question: "Should a couple marry on $1,000 a year?" This is an old question. It has been decided in many ways, and much advice has been heaped upon young people as to why and how to take the step.

It is an accepted fact that in the present day any household, even of but two members, must practice economy to live comfortably on $1,000 a year. It is not only toward clothes that the bride should adopt the serene attitude. She should assume it toward everything connected with her little household.

STATE FARMERS INSTITUTE.

An interesting and instructive program of the State Farmers Institute has been arranged and will take place at Frankfort, Ky., February 15th, and 16th and 17th. We hope to be able to give the entire program in our next issue. Many farmers of this county are always interested in these institutes and a good representation will attend from here.

Among those who have been invited to deliver addresses are: Gov. A. O. Stanley, Charles J. Brand, Chief Marketing Bureau, Washington, D. C.; Hon. J. W. Newman, former Commissioner of Agriculture of Kentucky; Dr. A. J. Payne, of the Bureau of Animal Industry; S. M. Jordan, Pioneer County Agent in Missouri; Hugh G. Van Pelt, Editor Kimball's Dairy Farmer, Waterloo, Iowa; J. Quincy Ward, Executive Agent Fish and Game Commission, R. C. Terrell, Good Roads Commissioner; Geoffrey Morgan, State Agent Farmers' Co-operative Demonstration Work; J. E. Barton, State Forester; M. O. Hughes, District Agent Farmers' Co-operative Demonstration Work; Prof. J. G. Crabbe, President Eastern Normal School; Prof. H. H. Cherry, President Western Normal School; M. S. Barker, President State University; Prof. W. D. Nichols, Assistant Animal Husbandman, State University; Prof. J. H. Carmody, Horticulture, State University; Mrs. Helen B. Wolcott, State Agent Home Demonstration Work; Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, State Literacy Commission, and others.

WOMEN SHRINK FROM MODESTY

Bear Grievous Ailments Rather Than Make Condition Known.

The subjects of complaints peculiar to women is a delicate one, yet it is a plain duty to let these sufferers know that most of the derangements from which they suffer are due primarily to nervous debility.

Many a suffering woman, influenced by shrinking modesty, has borne this grievous condition without complaint rather than make a personal appeal. When women say, "I am all run down, so nervous and weak", that means they are victims of the modern malady.

Such women, and they are a legion in every community, suffer from headaches, backaches, loss of appetite and sleeplessness. Their spirits are always depressed and their lives are not the normally happy ones of their more fortunate sisters. Often, too, there are spells of nausea, weakness, or even fainting, that make them feel insecure and to wonder when they will be embarrassed, or even in danger, because of their condition.

For such suffering women Tanlac, the tonic, tissue builder, appetizer and invigorant, is ideal. Tanlac builds up the system, promotes digestion and proper assimilation of food, vitalizes the blood and brings back healthy color to the cheeks and real sparkle to the eyes.

Tanlac may now be obtained in Lancaster at R. E. McRoberts, where its merits are fully explained.

Dr. Frank Cheek, of Danville will conduct the congregational services at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning. Every member of this church is urged to be present.

VALUE OF RELIGION.

If you want to know the commercial value of religion, look at Wilmore, Jesamine county. A few years ago it was merely a flag station of the Southern railroad. Now it is a full fledged city with over two thousand population. It was pure religion that made the transformation. The Methodist church established a school there and supported it liberally both by money and what is better than money, a good wholesome religious atmosphere. It has long been known as the city of the sanctified. Whether or not its inhabitants can reach to that high estate, is not material. That they have practiced and taught the higher life is known to every one. Today as a result of that teaching and practice, they have a flourishing school, well grounded and likely to endure for many a year. The school has just recently bought additional lands which will be used in connection with the school and an agricultural side of the school will be established. This will enable many a young man who is ambitious to get a finished education, to do so at a nominal cost. By his brawn he can cultivate his brain. Other places might emulate the example of Wilmore with profit to themselves.—Harrodsburg Herald.

Not Hard to Make.
A homemade desk set, mounted in moire silk in green, brown or the color predominating in her bedroom, is a gift the schoolgirl would be delighted with. Sheets of blotting paper may be bought to match, and a pen-wiper and small blotter backed with pieces of cardboard covered with the silk and tied with narrow ribbon in the same color.

Began Stanley's Career.
David Livingstone started on his last great journey into the heart of the Dark Continent in 1865. It was not until November, 1871, that Stanley found him. Stanley's book, "How I Found Livingstone," had a most enormous sale, and his meeting with Livingstone turned Stanley from a newspaper correspondent into the most enthusiastic of African explorers.

Different Matter.
A lawyer who was sometimes forgetful, having been engaged to plead the cause of an offender, began by saying: "I know the prisoner at the bar, and he bears the character of being a most consummate and impudent scoundrel!" Here somebody whispered to him that the prisoner was his client, when he immediately continued: "But what great and good man ever lived who was not calumniated by many of his contemporaries!"—Case and Comment.

Women's Duties.
For the women of an earlier time, their duties were not only well defined, they were unescapable. For us, they are not only rather readily escapable, they are not even defined. This is, indeed, broadly true of all clients, whose entire emphasis seems to have changed. The older moralists occupied themselves with the difficulty of doing one's duty. The modern ones, if they want to hold our attention, must rather consider the preliminary difficulty of finding out what one's duty is.—Elizabeth Woodbridge in Atlantic Monthly.

For a Bilious Attack.
When you have a severe headache, accompanied by a coated tongue, loathing of food, constipation, torpid liver, vomiting of partly digested food and then bile, you may know that you have a severe bilious attack. Jimmie's School Marks

By F. A. MITCHEL.

An old woman entered a bank and asked to be advised how to send money to her son in another city. The president was the only one of the officers present, and the woman was referred to him. She was a garrulous old lady and, like most women when started talking about their sons, poured a steady stream in the president's ears of her son's superiority over other women's sons, mingled with some hard luck he had had.

"Jimmie," she said, "was always an affectionate child, truthful, thoughtful and never gave me a bit of trouble. He was so smart when he was at school that he never needed to study much at home, and his marks were always C and D, which are the highest. He never got A but once, and he said that was a mistake. One day he came home and said he wasn't going to school any more; he didn't approve of the system of education. He thought the boys were treated like sausage meat—all put into a hopper and ground out together. He said he had found that he could do one thing well and it was very easy for him. I asked him what it was, and he said it had nothing to do with school work and didn't need any education at all. He would show me instead of telling me; then I would understand him. He lifted the clock from the mantle, took it all to pieces and put it together again.

"For land's sake, Jimmie," I said, "are you going to be satisfied to be a clock tinker?"
"Oh, mother," he said, giving me a hug, "you don't understand what I'm driving at!"
"The next day he bid me goodbye and said, 'You won't see me again till I've made some success in the world.'"

"You won't make much of a success," I said, "without an education. I was in hopes you would have some ambition and go to college. I could have paid part, and you could have earned the rest teaching school or something."

"I haven't time to go to college," he said. "I've got a big work before me. I'm going to make something that has never been successfully thus far constructed."

"He went away, and I've not seen him since. I'm sure he will succeed, but I wish he would tell me how he is getting on. You see, he has had a lot to contend with. First he was taken sick and didn't earn a cent for months, besides paying something for being in a hospital. Then he—"

"Madam," interrupted the banker, "I'm too busy to listen to all this. From your description of your son I judge that he is a ne'er-do-well."

The old lady looked at the banker wondering. "Jimmie a ne'er-do-well? Why, he's the smartest boy you ever saw. How do you suppose he ever got those high marks at school unless—"

The banker cut her short, asking her how much money she wanted to send her son, but when she said that she was going to let him have $1,000, for which he was to send her a thousand shares of stock in a manufacturing concern he was organizing, the president implored her not to rob herself by putting her money in some wild scheme that would surely explode and leave her in the lurch.

"Wild scheme?" she exclaimed. "Do you suppose my boy would let his mother put her money in a wild scheme? Why, he wouldn't!"
"Enough, madam. Let me have your $1,000 and I'll give you a draft for it that will be as good as money for your son. But remember that I warned you."

The old lady opened a hand bag and took out a stocking, from which she poured a quart measure of bills, gold and silver. The banker called a clerk and directed him to count the money and, finding the amount as the old lady had stated, gave her a draft for it.

Two years passed. One day a carriage drove up to the bank, and an old lady wrapped in expensive furs was helped to alight by a maid who carried a satchel and, going into the bank, asked for the president.

"I've got a lot of papers," she said. "I want you to take care of for me." And, opening the satchel, she drew forth a pile of securities which the president, on looking to see if they were of great value, he looked them in a box in the safety deposit branch of the bank and, handing her the key, told her that she, and she alone, would be able to unlock the box and would have access to it at any time during business hours.

"You don't seem to know me," she said.
"Really," replied the banker, "I must confess that I don't."

"Don't you remember my coming in here and emptying a stocking full of money and you giving me a paper for it to send to my boy? Well, Jimmie was getting up a company to make something he had invented. He'd saved $2,000 himself and needed $1,000 more. I sent it to him, and he gave me a third interest in the concern. After he got to making money he 'watered the stock,' whatever that means, and gave me a thousand shares. Jimmie says each share is worth $300. I know that Jimmie couldn't have got all those C and D marks at school if he wasn't mighty smart!"

"Madam," said the banker, "I am glad that you didn't accept my advice. I fancy your son is a genius, and one never can tell what such persons are going to do."

"And they told me he had been expelled from school," added the old lady triumphantly.

When you have a severe headache, accompanied by a coated tongue, loathing of food, constipation, torpid liver, vomiting of partly digested food and then bile, you may know that you have a severe bilious attack. LEXINGTON TOBACCO MARKET ADVANCES.

Last week's total offerings of 3,771,025 pounds averaged $11.88 per hundred, an advance of 37 cents over the average of the week before and an advance of 96 cents over the week previous.

On Monday the entire sale on our PLANTERS HOUSE floor averaged $11.94 the average of the market that day being $11.68.

On Wednesday the entire sale on our LEXINGTON HOUSE No. 1, floor averaged $10.53, the entire market averaged that day $10.25.

On Friday again at the PLANTERS HOUSE the entire break averaged $11.14, the general average for the market that day being $10.51.

On Friday again at our CENTRAL HOUSE the entire break sold, averaged $11.95, while the market that day averaged $11.53.

From the above averages we show that we are getting full values for our customers and that the daily averages of the breaks on our floors are higher than the daily averages of the market. We are able to do this by having well lighted sales floors and experienced tobacco men to handle your business who know the market value of each basket of your tobacco and will see that you get it. There was a considerable strengthening of prices this week on common tobaccos, the advance being from $1.00 to $2.00 per hundred, while good red tobaccos and color smokers were in active demand at prices of the week previous.

A great many growers of tobacco who have been patronizing small markets have visited our market during the last two weeks and after seeing our sales have returned home thoroughly satisfied that our market and the manner in which we conduct our sales is as we have advertised and are now bringing their crops to us.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating thereof." If you have not visited our market, come to see us or send us a load and you will be convinced that you have been losing from $2.00 to $3.00 per hundred on your crop by selling on a small market.

Don't forget that we have four sales houses and have a sale in one or more of them every day.

We can unload you any day you come and either sell you that day or the next

How She Was Bribed

By PAUL WHITCOMB

During the latter part of President Huerta's administration of the government of Mexico it became necessary for the United States government to send to the American representative there a document of great importance. There were Mexican spies in those days who were attempting to thwart the efforts of the Washington government and who worked very adroitly. They had their confederates in the departments who posted them as to what was taking place.

Paul Millard, a clerk in the state department, was interested with the document and wanted to guard it carefully lest he be dispossessed of it. He was a young man recently married and, taking his dispatch home, told his wife of his mission and asked her to pack a suit case, the only baggage he intended to take with him.

Now, the Mexican secret service men at Washington, knowing that Paul Millard was a clerk in the office of the secretary of state and had access to secrets, had tempted his wife with jewels to get information through her. She had not yielded, but, being shrewd, had pretended to be half inclined to consent. She said nothing to Paul about having been sounded, but when he told her of his mission she went out on pretense of making a purchase and told the person who had tried to buy her that her husband would start the next morning for Mexico with an important dispatch.

Before going to bed that night she asked to see the document, which was contained in an official envelope and sealed with the seal of the United States. She told him that it would be wiser to put it into a plain envelope addressed to an assumed name. He asked her to do it, and she took it into another room for the purpose, bringing it back resealed.

Millard next morning bade his wife goodbye and started on his journey. As may be expected, he was watched by the Mexican secret service employees, who were intent on waylaying him, but he took precautions always to be where there were others about him, and they found no opportunity. A very pretty woman was sent on the trip, which was made by sea, to fascinate him, but Paul, besides being a faithful husband, was no fool, and he refused to be duped by her.

During the voyage his stateroom was entered and his suit case examined. But he had taken the dispatch and placed it in the breast pocket of his coat, where he could constantly feel its bulk. Then the conspirators, feeling sure that he carried it on his person, made efforts to get him by himself so that they might get it into their possession. On one occasion a man spoke enthusiastically of phosphorescent lights at the stern of the vessel, suggesting that he go with him to see. No one was there, and Millard declined to go. This attempt put him on his guard, and for the rest of the voyage he took care never to be caught alone.

On arriving at Vera Cruz he took a train for Mexico City. Being now in the enemy's country, he felt that he was in more danger. And he was. The Mexicans were doing pretty much as they pleased, and so long as Huerta's men knew that Paul carried an important document from the United States government it was a foregone conclusion that he would be robbed of it.

True enough, at the first station at which the train stopped several men entered the car where Paul sat and passed through it, evidently looking for some one. On reaching him they took him into the baggage car and had no trouble in finding the package in his pocket. Then they permitted him to return to his seat in the car he had left.

Paul was naturally very much cast down. He regretted that he had attempted to carry the document through without protection. What puzzled him was that any one could have got wind of his going. No one knew the secret except an assistant secretary who had given him the dispatch, Mrs. Millard and himself. Surely the department must be full of spies.

On reaching Mexico City he determined to go to the United States embassy and report his loss. He was looking for a cab when a veiled lady sitting in one beckoned to him to get in. At first he refused; then, remembering that, having lost his dispatch, further precaution was unnecessary and not seeing another cab at his disposal, he consented.

"Where do you wish to go?" asked the lady in English, but with a Spanish accent.

"First let the driver take you to your destination," replied Paul.

"I am going to the United States embassy,"

Paul looked surprised and gave the order to drive to the embassy. The lady leaned back on the cushion and made no further remark. When they pulled up at the embassy he handed her out and followed her into the house. The lady said something to an attendant that Paul did not hear, and she was immediately admitted to the private office of the ambassador. A few minutes later Paul was called in. The ambassador was perusing a document, while seated near him was Mrs. Millard.

"It's safe, Paul," she said, nodding at the paper in the ambassador's hands. "I took it when you gave it to me to inclose in another envelope. The one I returned to you and that the Mexicans took was a dummy."

Then she told him how the enemy had tried to bribe her.

POULTRY and EGGS

FEEDING HENS FOR EGG PRODUCTION

(Prepared by United States department of agriculture.)

Laying hens should be fed with the object of obtaining the maximum egg production. Successful feeding, according to the United States department of agriculture's poultry specialists, should take into account the following considerations: Nutrition, variety, palatability, succulence and other requirements, such as supply of water, etc.

The ration should be as simple as possible, one that can be obtained easily in the particular locality and yet fill the requirements for good egg production. To produce the best results the ration should be made up of grain, mash, some form of animal feed and green or succulent feed. When the hens are permitted to range, as most farm flocks are much of the year, they will pick up a large part of their feed. The amount of grain given them should vary with the amount of feed they are able to obtain themselves.

GRAIN MIXTURES.

The grain feeds are usually mixtures. Corn, which is fed either cracked or whole, is a good feed, but should not be used alone. Wheat is a good grain feed relished by hens, but is expensive. A good mixture is made up of equal parts by weight of corn, wheat and oats. Other grains that may be used are buckwheat, barley, milo, maize and Kafir corn. A light feed of the grain mixture should be given in the morning, while at night the hens may be fed about all they will eat. If the hens are confined the grain should be scattered in the litter of straw or other material on the henhouse floor so that they will exercise in scratching for it.

A mash mixture is usually fed in conjunction with grain. The most common ingredients of such mixtures are wheat middlings, cornmeal, corn chop, gluten meal, linseed meal, cottonseed meal, ground oats and beef scrap, fish scrap or meat meal. A mash which gives good results is made up of equal parts by weight of cornmeal, wheat bran, wheat middlings and beef scrap. For mixing a wet mash either skim milk, buttermilk or sour milk is excellent material. If water is used it should be hot, and care should be taken to mix the mash thoroughly. It should be just wet enough to be in a crumbly condition. Wet mash is usually fed but once a day, either morning, noon or night, noon being considered the most favorable time. No more should be fed than will be eaten in ten or fifteen minutes. If mash is fed dry it is usually put in a hopper placed where the hens may help themselves at all times.

SPROUTED OATS.

Perhaps no other ingredient is so often lacking in rations for laying hens as a sufficient supply of animal feed. This may be furnished in the form of beef scrap, either by itself in a hopper or in a mash mixture, and when other animal feed is not available it will pay to buy and feed a good grade of beef scrap, even though it seems expensive. Animal feed may also be provided by table scraps, milk in some form or by the bugs and worms which the hens pick up. Green home may also be used, although it is difficult to prepare and hard to keep in condition. If fed too freely it will cause diarrhea. When feeding this material the droppings should be watched carefully, and upon the first sign of serious diarrhea the supply should be immediately lessened.

SPROUTED OATS FOR HENS.

When grass or any green growing crop is not available it is necessary to supply some form of green or succulent feed, the lack of which often results in eggs with pale yolks. Cabbage, beets, clover or alfalfa hay may be used for this purpose. Sprouted oats form a very satisfactory green feed where none other is available. To sprout oats they should be soaked for twelve hours in warm water and then be spread out, one-half to one and one-half inches deep, on a floor or in a tray or tier of flats, with holes in the bottom or with one-fourth inch wire mesh bottoms covered with burlap to provide free drainage. The oats may be sprinkled and stirred daily, or they may be allowed to sprout without stirring until

KIPLING TELLS OF BY GERMANS IN

Shell Battered Cathedral as Altar of Invaders to Commemorate Their Death.

We present below the second of six articles from the pen of Rudyard Kipling, under the general title of "France at War on the Frontier of Civilization," describing the impressions of a visit to the fighting line in France.

By RUDYARD KIPLING.

WE left that stricken but undefeated town, dotted a few miles down roads beside which women tended their cows and dropped into place on a hill where a Moroccan regiment of many experiences was billeted.

They were Mohammedans battling like a half dozen of our Indian frontier types. Though they spoke no accessible tongue they had, of course, turned farm buildings where they lay into a little bit of Africa in color and in smell.

They had been gassed in Flanders, shot down and shot up and set up to be shelled again, and their officers talked of north African wars that we had never heard of, sultry days against long odds in the desert, years ago.

"Afterward, it is not so with you also? We get our best recruits from the troops we have fought. These men are children. They make no trouble. They only want to go where cartridges are burned. They are of the few races to whom fighting is a pleasure."

"And how long have you dealt with them?"

"A long time, a long time. I helped organize corps. I am one of those whose hearts are in Africa."

He spoke slowly, almost feeling for his French words, and gave some of them an order I shall not forget. Nor shall I forget his eyes as he turned to a huge brown Afreede, like a Mussulman, hunkering down beside his accoutrements. He had two sides to his head, that bearded, bowed, slow spoken officer we met and parted with all in an hour.

Petrol Flavors Twilight.

The day closed after an amazing interlude in the chateau of a dream which was all glassy ponds, stately trees and vistas of white and gold salons. The proprietor was somebody's chauffeur at the front. We drank his health in the little village, in twilight, full of petrol, hundreds of cars and the wholesale flavor of healthy troops. There is no better guide to camp than one's own thoughtful nose, and though I poked mine everywhere, in no place did it strike that vile, betraying taint of underfed, unclean men and gun horses.

It is difficult to keep one's eyes after hours of fresh air and experience. One does not get the most from the most interesting part of the day—dinner with the local headquarters. Here the professionals meet, the line gunners, the intelligence, with stupefying plans of the enemy's trenches, the supply, the staff who collect and note all things and are very properly chafed and, to be sure, the interpreter, who by force of questioning prisoners naturally develops into a Sadducee.

It is their little aside to each other, the slang and half words, which, if one but understood, instead of blinking drowsily at one's plate, would give a day's history. But the tiredness and the difficulties of a sister, not a foreign, tongue dims everything, and one goes to bed amid the murmur of voices, the rush of single cars through the night, the passage of battalions and behind all the echo of deep voices calling one to the other along a line that never sleeps.

Batteries in Hiding.

A long ridge with scattered pines. It might have hidden children at play. Certainly a horse would have been quite visible. But there was no hint of guns, except a semaphore which announced that it was forbidden to pass that way as a battery was firing. The batteries must have looked for that battery too. The ground was pitted with shell holes as all calibers, some of them as fresh as mole casts in the misty, damp morning, others where poppies had grown from seed to flower all through the summer.

"And where are the guns?" I demanded at last. They were almost under one's hand, their ammunition in cellars and dugouts beside them.

And, as far as I could make out, the 75 millimeter gun has no pet name. The bayonet, of course, is Rosalie, virgin of Bayonne, but the 75, the watchful nurse of the trenches and the little sister of the line, seems to be always the Soixante-Quinze. But even those who love her best do not say that she is beautiful. Her merits are French logic, directness, simplicity and the supreme gift of occasionality. She is equal to everything on the spur of the moment. One sees and studies the few appliances which make her do what she does, and one feels that any one could have invented her.

"As a matter of fact," says a commandant, "anybody, or, rather, everybody, did. The record is after such and such a system, patent of which had expired, and we improved it. The breech action, with slight modification, is somebody else's; the sighting is per-happens a little special, and so is the traversing, but at bottom it is only an assembly of variations and arrangements."

Famous Author Describes How Psychology of France Is Altered by War.

Guns Result of Collaboration.

That, of course, is all Shakespeare ever got out of the alphabet. French artillerymen make their own guns, as he made his plays. It is just as simple as that.

"There is nothing going on for a moment," said the commandant. "It is too misty. I fancy that the boches, being of all things methodical, introduce the amateurs to the batteries in the intervals. At least there are hours, healthy and unhealthy, which vary with each position. But," the commandant reflected, "there, let us say, is a place and a distance."

He gave a range. The gun servers stood back with the bored contempt of the professional for the layman who intrudes on his mysteries. Other civilians had come that way before, had seen and grinned and complimented and gone their way, leaving the gunner high up on the back of the bleak hillside to grill or mellow or freeze for weeks and months.

Then she spoke. Her voice was higher pitched, it seemed, than ours, with a more shrewish tang to the speaking shell. Her recoil was as swift and as graceful as the shrug of a Frenchman's shoulders. The empty case leaped forth and clanged against the trail, the tops of two or three pines fifty yards away nodded knowingly to each other, though there was no wind.

"They'll be bothered down below to know the meaning of our single shot. We don't give them one dose at a time as a rule."

Somebody laughed. We waited in the fragrant silence. Nothing came back from the mist over that clogged low ground, though no shell of this war was ever launched with more earnest prayers that it may do harm.

French Psychology Changed.

They talked about the lives of guns, what number of rounds some will stand and others will not, how one can make two good guns out of three spoiled ones and what crazy luck sometimes goes with a single shot or a blind salvo. A shell must fall somewhere and by the law of averages occasionally alights as straight as a homing pigeon on the one spot where it can wreck the most. Then the earth opens for yards around and men must be dug out, some, merely breathless, who shake their ears and carry on, and others whose souls have gone loose among the terrors. These have to be dealt with as their psychology demands, and a French officer is a good psychologist.

One of them said:

"Our national psychology has changed. I do not recognize it myself. What made the change? The boche. If he had been quiet for another twenty years the world must have been as rotten as his. But it is all his now. He is saving the world. How? Because he has shown us what evil is. We, you and I, England and civilization, had begun to doubt the existence of evil. The boche is saving us."

Then we had another look at the animal in its trench, a little nearer this time than before and quieter on account of the mist having picked up. Anyone who please you shall find the same observation post, table, map, observer and telephonist. It is always hidden, the guns are always ready, and the same smeared wisp of trenches is smoking and flaring from Switzerland to the sea. The handling of the war varies with the nature of the country, but the tools are unaltered. One looks upon them at last with the same weariness of wonder that the eye receives from an endless repetition of Egyptian hieroglyphics.

Symbols of the Conflict.

A long profile with a lump to one side means a field gun and its attendant ammunition case. A circle and a slot stand for an observation post. The trench is a bent line studded with vertical plumes of explosion. The great guns of position, coming and going on their motors, repeat themselves as scarabs, and man himself is a small blue smudge no larger than a fore-sight, crawling and creeping or watching and running among all those terrific symbols.

But there is no hieroglyphic for Rheims, no blunting of the mind at the abominations committed on the cathedral there. The thing peers up there, maimed and blinded from out of the utter wreckage of the archbishop's palace on the one side and a dust heap of tumbled houses on the other. They shelled, as they still shell it, with high explosives and with incendiary bombs, so that the statues and stonework still in their places are burned the color of raw flesh. The gargoyles are smashed, statues, crockets and spires tumbled, walls split and torn, windows thrust out and all tracery obliterated. Wherever one looks at the tortured pile there is mutilation and defilement, and yet it had never more of a soul than it has today.

Inside, "Cover yourselves, gentlemen," said the sacristan; "this place is no longer consecrated." Everything is swept clear or burned out from end to end except two candlesticks in front of the niche where Joan of Arc's image used to stand. There is a French flag there now. The last time I saw Rheims cathedral it was in a spring twilight, when the great west window glowed and the only lights within were those of some candles which a penitent Englishman had lit in Joan of Arc's honor on those same candlesticks. The high altar was covered with carpets, the pavement and tiles were cracked and jarred out by the rubbish that had fallen from above, the floor was gritty with dust of glass and powdered stone and little twists of leading from windows and iron fragments. Two great doors had been blown inward by the blast of a shell in the archbishop's garden until they had been bent grotesquely to the curve of a cask. There they had jammed the windows.

Rheims but One Altar.

But the record has been made and will be kept by better hands than mine. It will last through the generations in which the Teuton is cut off from fellowship with mankind and through all the long, still years when the war of the body is at an end and the real war begins. Rheims is but one of the altars which the heathens have made on which to commemorate their own death throughout the world. It will serve. There is a mark well known to the world by now which they have left for a visible seal to their doom.

When they first set the place alight there were some hundreds of their wounded in the cathedral. The French saved as many as they could, but some had to be left. Among them was a major, who lay with his back against a pillar. It has been ordered that signs of his torment should remain. An outline of both legs and half of his body is printed in greasy black upon the stones. There are very many people who hope and pray that it will be respected, at least, by our children's children.

And in the meantime Rheims goes about what business it may have with that iron nerve and endurance and faith which are the new inheritances of France. There is agony enough when the big shells come in. There are pain and terror among the people and always fresh desecration to watch and suffer. The old men and the women and children drink of that cup daily, and the bitterness does not enter into their souls. Mere words of admiration are impertinent. But the exquisite quality of French civilization has been a marvel to me throughout. They say themselves when they talk:

"We did not know what the nation was. Frankly, we did not expect it ourselves, but the thing came, and you see we go on."

Or as a woman puts it more logically:

"What else can we do? Remember, we knew the boche in '70, when you did not. We know what he has done in the last year. This is not war. It is against wild beasts that we fight. There is no arrangement possible with wild beasts."

This is one vital point which we in England must realize. We are dealing with animals who have scientifically and philosophically removed themselves unconsciously outside of civilization. When you have heard a few tales, only a few tales, of their doings you begin to understand a little more.

When you have looked long enough into the faces of the women you are inclined to think that the women will have a large say in the final terms. They have earned it a thousand times.

DREADNOUGHT CALIFORNIA WILL HAVE "CLIPPER" BOW.

New Battleship by Her Graceful Stem Will Bring Drastic Changes.

The new battleship California, the keel of which will soon be laid, will be the world's first electric Dreadnought and from point of size will be greater than any foreign battleship built or building. The California and her sister ships, the Mississippi and the Idaho, already authorized, will each displace 32,000 tons, almost 1,000 tons more than the new Dreadnought Pennsylvania, now on the way to completion.

The California will be a ship of innovations. She will cost $7,800,000 without her armor or armament, which is expected to cost as much more. She will have a speed of twenty-one knots an hour, will be 624 feet long, ninety-seven feet across her beam and will draw thirty feet of water. She will carry twelve fourteen-inch guns, mounted three abreast in a turret, and twenty-two five-inch rapid fire guns and will have four submerged torpedo tubes.

The principal feature of the new Dreadnought, however, is the machinery for propelling her by electricity. She will be driven by motors which will deliver electricity made by steam. The navy experts believe the electric installation is cheaper than steam propulsion and reduces the weight of machinery. The collier Jupiter has been so successful with electric machinery that the navy feels justified in adapting it to a Dreadnought.

Outwardly the California will bring a drastic change of line and appearance to the battle fleet. Instead of the blunt gray nose of the present day big fighter her bows will be tapered into a graceful, yachtlike stem much like those of the famous clipper sailing ships that carried the American flag at the head of the world's swiftest craft in the forties and fifties.

For a Bilious Attack.

When you have a severe headache, accompanied by a coated tongue, loathing of food, constipation, torpid liver, vomiting of partly digested food and then bile, you may know that you have a severe bilious attack. While you may be quite sick there is much consolation in knowing that relief may be had by taking three of Chamberlain's Tablets. They are prompt and effective. Obtainable everywhere. 1m.

HERE'S NATURE'S OWN REMEDY FOR CATARRH

Hyomei Relieves Catarrh Without the Use of Dangerous Drugs.

Not until Hyomei was discovered has it been possible to truthfully say that a real remedy for catarrh was known.

Hyomei is an oil and its air is breathed through a small inhaler furnished with it for a few minutes four time a day, and during that time every particle of this Hyomei laden air taken into the air passages and lungs is impregnated with a powerful germ killing and health-giving antiseptic.

Sprays and lotions often cause disorders of the respiratory tracts or bring on some other diseases and never make a permanent cure of catarrh. But when the air of Hyomei penetrates to the innermost air cells of the lungs and enters the blood with the oxygen it not only kills the germs in the throat and nose, but kills the bacilli in the blood, freeing the mucous membranes from poisonous microbes and giving perfect health.

A complete outfit is inexpensive and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for several weeks treatment.

R. E. McRoberts has so much faith in the merit of Hyomei that he agrees to return the money to any purchaser who is not thoroughly satisfied. 1-27-21

THE CALL OF THE TELEPHONE.

A man who was kept at home a week by an attack of grip, remarked on his return to work, that he had been amazed by the part the telephone was playing in his family life. It was his estimate that the bell rang three times an hour on an average, from 9 a. m. to 10 p. m.

He believed the conversations over the wire averaged at least five minutes apiece. He figured 40 conversations during the day, totaling over three hours of time. His wife at times became desperate, and begged him to intercept the pestiferous calls. Yet the vivacity with which she conversed over the wire suggested that the interruptions were not wholly unwelcome.

Much of this conversation seemed to be merely social "visiting". Some of it of course represented consultations over the work of church and other organizations, while some of it was the ordering of household supplies.

The severe philosopher will say that the modern woman is wasting a lot of time over the telephone which interferes with the performance of the housewife's tasks in which a former generation used to excel. Probably there are cases where this criticism is correct. It is so very easy for any one and every one to gain access to the homes and time of other people merely by ringing up central. People who would never think of calling in person will call by wire, and women with social natures find it difficult to resist the invitation to aimless gossip.

There is much to be said on the other side though, of the service the telephone renders in breaking the isolation of women's lives. It used to be stated that many farmer's wives went crazy by reason of the loneliness of their lives. No need for that now with the telephone making possible social visiting for 10 hours a day, and if the lonely person can't think of anything to say, she can pull down the receiver and hear what the neighbors are saying. It is not surprising that it is almost impossible for the men to get the rural lines to close up business deals, at any time except when the house wife are preparing meals.

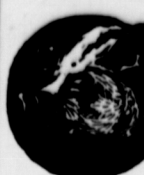

In town life the telephone facilitates marvellously the work of many organizations through which women perform so efficiently their civic and philanthropic task. Many a woman is kept from becoming morbid by the constant contact she now gets with the life of other once-isolated women about her.

WAY IS PAVED FOR BUSINESS

Committees Are In Shape and Good Legislation Is Promised

PLAN BONDS FOR DEBT

Woman Suffrage May Be Left Out—Stamp of Approval Given Corrupt Practice Bill—Important Insurance Matters.

Frankfort, Ky.—(Special)—With the various committees well organized and carrying out the Administration's pre-election pledges and suggestions, some real business legislation is promised by the General Assembly during the early days of February.

Louisville bankers have discussed the matter of arranging the state debt and it is generally believed that the Governor and state financiers will float bonds to take care of the present large state indebtedness which the present administration inherited.

The Vance-Sheer corrupt practice bill, endorsed by Governor Stanley and known as an administration measure, passed the House by a vote of 80 to 8. The measure as adopted fixes the maximum amount of money that may be spent by any candidate for an office in Kentucky, including the primary and general election.

The amounts follow: Governor, $20,000; other state officers, $10,000; Railroad Commissioner and Judge of the Court of Appeals, $5,000; Circuit Judge and Commonwealth's Attorney, $5,000; county officials in counties having cities of first class, $5,000; county officials in counties having cities of the second class, $4,000; county officials in counties having cities of the third class, $3,000; county officials in all other counties, $2,000; Representatives, $700; Senators, $2,000; for any other office, city, county or district not mentioned, $1,000.

The bill repeals the statute which requires two witnesses to convict for bribery in elections.

The amount of money spent by candidates must be filed for publication 15 days before and 15 days after election and a fine of from $100 to $1,000 for failure is provided.

In order that they may lend every assistance possible to help the state liquidate the present debts and carry out the Administrations' "economy pledges," President Henry Hardin Cherry and the Board of Regents of the Western Kentucky State Normal School have decided not to ask for any additional appropriation this session, even though the good work of this institution, of which thousands of Kentuckians are very proud, has steadily been increased and is today accommodating more students than ever before.

It is considered safe to predict that the bill of Senator J. B. Hiles, of Bracken county, appropriating $20,000 annually for five years to the Kentucky Literacy Commission, of which Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart is the head, will go through both houses as rapidly and as certainly as any measure of the session.

A bill intended to do away with racing in the state by banishing the pari-mutuel machines and prohibiting betting in any form, has been introduced by Representative Jack Oliver, of Scottsville, Allen county, a Republican. It is said by his opponents that he hails from a county, which is a day's journey from a race track.

Only two constitutional amendments are permitted to be passed at any regular session of the legislature and no more amendments can be voted upon at the same time.

If the House concurs in the action of the Senate on the Combs-Hobbs bill, amending the constitution to permit telephone companies to merge, and the Knight-Meyers bill to amend the constitution so that a proper workmen's compensation act may be adopted, the woman suffragists who are appealing for the ballot in Kentucky will be locked out until the next session of the General Assembly at least.

Should the House reject one of these amendments, then the Senate would be free to act upon the Woman Suffrage question but it is not believed that the women will have it come up again.

The legislators do appear to be ready to give them much encouragement right now.

Favorable reports have been made on the following bills: To make holder of equitable title to property responsible for listing it for taxation as between him and legal holder; to permit taxpayers to pay their portion of special levy to redeem railroad bonds and be exonerated from liability; to regulate toll bridges to be erected over navigable streams; to amend state text books laws limiting changes to three branches in one year; to permit fiscal courts to anticipate revenues and borrow money for less than six per cent; to provide for submission of question of substitute county commissioners for fiscal court, at any general election; to extend bonds of public officers to cover acts done while holding beyond regular terms of office and the anti-pass measure of Senator Zimmerman.

Senator H. M. Brock, Republican floor leader in the Senate and who has occupied that position for the past two sessions, will be a candidate for election as delegate to the Republican National Convention from the Eleventh District, according to leaders in Frankfort.

Providing for the abolishing of the First and Second Assistant Attorney General, Representative Jackson, Republican, Lee County, has introduced a bill, and says that he is of the opinion that since the Governor and Attorney General have authority under the law to employ special assistants as the need for them arises, the permanent employment of assistants is unnecessary.

Much curiosity is being expressed as to the investigations into the State printing expenses. The committee is composed of Senators Helm, Huffaker and Brock, but so far the probes have not been sharpened, according to reports.

The roll call in the Senate on the Prohibition question was the longest on record, taking nearly an hour to complete. The time was taken up by the universal desire of the senators to explain their vote.

Endorsed by State Superintendent of Public Instruction, V. O. Gilbert, a bill introduced by Representative Radcliffe, of Henry County, provides for the taking of the school census every two years instead of annually as has been the custom. He claims that this will save the State $35,000.

A bill to prevent the activity of office holders in working to increase the salaries of their own and other offices, introduced by Senator Porter, of Webster County, is taken quite seriously by the Senate and is likely to pass.

A model bill providing for working of convicts on the public roads will be drafted by Senator Webster Helm, of Campbell County, who is chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Roads and Highways.

A resolution requesting the Kentucky delegation in Congress to support a bill making national prohibition possible, provided the brewers and distillers receive compensation for their plants, passed the Senate.

It was first introduced by Senator Huntsman, of Warren County, merely requesting them to support the national prohibition. This was amended by Senator Huffaker, of Louisville, providing compensation. This amendment was adopted by a vote of 17 to 15.

The resolution then passed as amended 23 to 6. Those voting against it were Senators Frost, Huntsman, Porter, Sanders, Scott and Taylor. Those declining to vote were Senators Clay, Hildreth, Montgomery, Moore, Peak and Salmon. Senator Ford was ill and not present.

Governor Stanley has appointed four members of the State Board of Equalization for terms of four years each. They include Ben S. Calvert, Stamping Ground; John A. Webb, Whitesburg; Charles P. Weaver and R. H. Cary, the latter two being re-appointed.

A meeting of the State Board of Agriculture was held in Louisville, at the call of Commissioner of Agriculture Cohen, for the purpose of making plans for the Kentucky State Fair to be held next fall.

Geo. T. Fuller, Mayfield, and C. J. Aud, Cecilian, were re-appointed members of the State Board of Health by Governor Stanley. The appointments are for four years.

Edwin P. Morrow, of Somerset, and George Long, of Leitchfield, were endorsed for delegates to the National Convention by the committee of the Republican Fourth Congressional District at their meeting in Elizabethtown. The twelve counties were represented with one exception.

James P. Lewis has filed his answer in the suit of Harksdale Hamlett claiming the election of Secretary of State to which Lewis was awarded the certificate of nomination and is now serving as the only Republican member of the State offices. He denies the numerous allegations made by Hamlett and asks a recount in a number of counties in which he says there were votes illegally counted. Edwin Morrow represents Lewis.

A. E. Lerche of Springfield Gives a Recipe for Getting Over the Blues

A. E. LERCHE

"If you ever get the blues," he said, "It is well to know the simplest and best way to get rid of them. Crankiness, nervousness and general upset condition preceding the blues usually are due to the relentless grip of constipation on the nervous system. The simplest way to meet this condition is to have a box of Rexall's Orderlies in your pocket and the best way is to take one when you feel the attack coming on. It is the finest laxative for men, women and children I know of, and is a regular antidote for the blues—the best ever."

Jesse Dunn, the 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Owsley Dunn, is in a very serious condition, as a result of a fall on the ice, while skating at his home. The little fellow had started after the cows and as he was walking through the pasture he came across a stream of water that had frozen and he proceeded to skate across it, when his feet slipped from under him and he fell and struck the back of his head. He paid very little attention to the accident at the time it happened, although he was compelled to remain on the ground for several minutes before he was able to get up and return home. For the last few days he has been suffering from severe headache and at intervals with most excruciating agony and no relief can be obtained except to put him under the influence of an opiate. A thorough examination has been made by several physicians and they claimed that some structure of the brain has been dislocated or broken loose by the jar received at the base of the skull.

Farmers

HOME TOBACCO WAREH'SE Company.

Incorporated.

INDEPENDANT.

Lexington, Ky. Virginia ave & Q&C.R.R

THIS IS FOR YOU MR. TOBACCO GROWER.

The Farmers Home Tobacco Warehouse Company has adopted the profit sharing plan. This means the net profit above six per cent. dividend, instead of being given to the stockholders, are to be given to you in proportion to your patronage.

The more tobacco we get the larger will be the profits returned. This profit sharing plan is guaranteed by the undersigned Directors. We were the first house in Kentucky to offer our warehouse to the farmers on the profit sharing basis.

Mr. Ford the automobile manufacturer made this proposition and returned $50.00 on every automobile; if we can get your support and sell 5,000,000 pounds of tobacco, we can return you fifteen to twenty cents on every hundred pounds sold. We guarantee to divide the profits, the other fellow keeps it.

The farmers see the proposition, and in consequence we have more than sold our pro-rata. The average of the Lexington market to date has been $10.00 per hundred, the Farmers Home average is $10.61, a net gain to our customers of sixty one cents. This has been accomplished by honest methods, and fresh tobacco which is always attractive to the buyer.

We have the second largest house in Lexington; it can house one hundred and twenty wagons; the stables are separate and apart from the warehouse, with one hundred and twenty box stalls. We have one hundred and thirty farmers as stockholders who control and direct the policy of this house.

We solicit your patronage and influence, and invite you to call and inspect our house and investigate this plan, because it means a saving to you.
